“ I first met Walt in 1972 when I was straight out of college. He taught me the fine art of real estate appraisal , the politics of local government and a lot of other stuff a young man needs to know. We worked together almost 23 years. He was a large part of my life. He is a kind, loving, and fun loving man. He cherished family over all else and wanted everyone to have success. I and thousands of others will miss him. Walt, let's share one last "Daaay O, Day A A O" together.
See you again.

“ My wife and I had the very great pleasure of meeting Walt and Margaret when they stayed with us in Scotland around 20 years ago.

We had never met Walt before, but Margaret is a relative of my wife Dawn, and both share an interest in family history.

Walt was such an easy man to get to know and to like. He was kind and thoughtful and that big grin was never far away. We very much enjoyed their stay with us.

On their return home, we began corresponding via email. Walt's reports and news lasted down through the years and were always fun and informative to read. It's hard to imagine they have come to an end.

Rest in peace Walt. You will be sorely missed.
